MEET THE CHAMPIONS

PLUS: CLUB CORNER + NATIONAL COURT + CHRISTMAS GIFT GUIDE
Back in July, at the British Grand Prix, Motorsport UK hosted the Secretary of State for Transport, Mark Harper, and discussed the long-term sustainability of motorsport in this country and how that could be synergistic with the broader transport objectives for the UK. With a Formula 1 race perhaps not offering the most obvious touch points to everyday road transport, we decided to look for something more down to earth, and settled on the Wyedean Rally that is held in November within Mark’s own parliamentary constituency in the Forest of Dean. A couple of weeks ago I headed down the M4 on another wet and windy morning, to meet the rally organisers at the HQ and welcomed Mark, who was keen to chat with the organising team and understand more about the operational challenges for an event of this scale within his patch. He has been the local MP since 2005, and is clearly well recognised by the locals, as everywhere we went people shook his hand and had warm words to say. In reciprocation Mark was full of glowing praise for the rally, and volunteered that in his time as an MP he has not had one complaint from any of his constituents, either for the Wyedean or the Three Shires Rally, which also falls within his constituency. That is certainly testament to the meticulous planning and Public Relations that the organisers conduct, and the way in which the event is run with the least impact possible on local people’s everyday lives.

Heading into the stages we climbed aboard the brand-new Land Rover Defender of Tim Jones, who I last saw at the Motorsport Games in France a year ago, where he was driving his Sunbeam Talbot to great effect. Although at the time he was rather frustrated that the open class that they use for the FIA Games allows much more powerful machinery into one category, led by an Audi Quattro that dominated the event. Tim was a fantastic pilot and tour guide for Mark, being able to point out all the key features on the route and in particular the safety measures that are taken to ensure that everything runs smoothly, not only for the competitor but also for all the spectators. I would thank the marshals who give up their time for such an event. There were over 200 on the day, who are kept busy making sure that spectators stand in the right areas and do not begin to wander about once the stage goes live. It was also reassuring to see how well the spectators listened to this advice and had a safe and thrilling day.

One subject we discussed was the use of sustainable fuels in motorsport. One of the entries was powered by 85 per cent sustainable biofuel, giving a good demonstration for Mark of the ‘drop-in’ useability of this new generation of fuels.
These biofuels are not carbon zero at the tailpipe but are ‘net carbon zero’ in that they use waste products from food and agriculture, that has already captured carbon from the atmosphere through their own photosynthesis. This is then processed into a hydrocarbon fuel that releases carbon dioxide at the point of use, but no more than was originally captured by the organic material when it grew.

This is important, as we discussed with Mark, because while we embrace the advent of electric powered vehicles, they are not going to change the stock of cars on the roads across the UK any time soon. To put that into some numbers, there are some 33 million registered passenger vehicles in the UK in 2023, with roughly the same number of vehicles being scrapped each year as are replaced by new cars. As has been publicised, there is draft government legislation stating that, from 2035, 100 per cent of new vehicle sales are required to be non-emission combustion engine (ICE) powered, which, for the majority, means battery electric vehicles. That 100 per cent goal ramps up from 2024, when it will be 22 per cent non-ICE vehicles. So, if you take an average of 55 per cent of sales being EVs, then over the next 12 years something in the region of 4.8 million electric vehicles will be added to the existing 1 million on our roads today. In round terms this leaves approximately 26 million internal combustion engine vehicles on our roads in 2035, and they will only be replaced at a rate of around 1.5 million per year – so it will be a further 15 years before we would have a total nation of electric vehicles in the UK, and that takes us all the way to 2050.

I know there may be some generalisations and assumptions in these back-of-the-envelope calculations, but the point is that the internal combustion engine is going to be around on UK roads for an extremely long time. The government needs to have a strategy for how we can substitute traditional fossil fuel hydrocarbons for net zero hydrocarbons. That will have a larger and swifter impact on our environmental sustainability than anything else that we can do for transportation. That is not just a UK opportunity but a global one.

Motorsport can play a vital role. Already we are at the forefront of the development of synthetic fuels, and sustainable fuels. Because our industry has relatively small usage volumes it can afford to pay a premium for these products based on its desire to enhance its sustainability credentials, and in so doing gives real world feedback to the scientists and chemists who are calculating the impact that these fuels have on existing ICE-powered vehicles. In addition to that, the role of motorsport is to demonstrate and publicise, in the most dramatic way possible, that a ‘drop-in fuel’ can not only provide a suitable alternative for everyday vehicles, but also power the most highly tuned and high performing vehicles. Discussing this with Mark Harper, I was, I hope, helpful in broadening the government’s perspective on seeking a more eclectic solution to our passenger car energy needs, rather than a singular reliance on the adoption of electric vehicles to the exclusion of all else.

Further interesting events in the month included the SRO Global Awards that were held at the Old Billingsgate in Central London. It is a venue that is somewhat unusual for the awards season of British motorsport championships as they typically seem to converge on locations in the Midlands. Although the Stephane Ratel Organisation run the British GT Championship, the reason for this venue choice is that they have an incredible global footprint of customers from GT racing in five continents, with their clientele flying in from South East Asia, Australia, North America, Africa and all over Europe to celebrate the exploits of GT3 and GT2 cars, as well as TCRs – in every imaginable race format from 24hrs of Spa, to GT races at the Macau Motorsport Weekend.

I have known Stephane Ratel for over 25 years since we ran the Prodrive Ferrari 550 Maranello’s in the European GT Championships from 2000–2004. There are very few people in the world of motorsport who have his unique blend of charismatic charm and the steely ability to deliver a formidable business operation as well as an outstanding customer focused product. I would say that the growth of Pro-Am racing across the world can largely be attributed to Stephane’s black book and his building of vibrant communities, combined with the clever application of balance of performance and the ranking of drivers. This gives close competitive racing with a mix of enthusiastic and talented amateurs and outright pro-drivers of the highest calibre. With amateurs generally providing the budget to express their passion, you then have a strong community and a buoyant GT industry that thrives off the back of this. Sitting on the table with the heads of BMW, Audi and Mercedes AMG Customer Racing, the combined number of GT3 cars that have been sold in recent years is over 1,500 units, when you include marques such as Ferrari, Aston Martin, and Lamborghini, all of which shows how incredibly successful GT racing is worldwide and how good a job Stephane has done to promote it globally.

The following evening the karting community gathered at the Wing at Silverstone for our annual British Karting Awards evening. This included the WERA Tools British Kart Championship (BKC) that Motorsport UK organises and promotes, as well as the Motorsport UK British Indoor Kart Championship (BIKC) that is run in conjunction with TeamSport. The BIKC has come a long way in the last few years and now has some 500 registered competitors vying for their spot on the pathway to becoming professional racing drivers. The wealth of talent that we have in the UK among these young drivers is impressive, and as you’ve heard me reflect on recent trips to the CIK World Karting Championships, there is no doubt we will continue to provide a disproportionate number of talented youngsters into the FIA Single Seater pathway with realistic opportunities of becoming professional racing drivers. One aspect that underpins our confidence in the future is our success at building the lower base of the karting pyramid to include Arrive and Drive karting, in the form of Club 100 and the Daniel Ricciardo Series, as well as the huge untapped potential of indoor karting through our partnership with TeamSport, and the NKA tracks in general. TeamSport has 35 centres across the UK, and welcome around 1.5 million customers through its doors every year, of which around 300,000 are in the Cadet 8–11 years-old bracket. The BIKC is designed for those who want to take kart racing more seriously and this year we had around 5,500 entries including over 800 in the Cadet category alone. It is no mean feat to beat that level of competition across the whole of the country, and it is of no surprise that those that graduated in the last couple of years have now moved on to shine either in Club 100 or further beyond into the BKC. One standout for me was Sam Slater who completed a hattrick of British titles in the senior category, against hundreds of different competitors each year, and to take the top step of the podium once again is surely the marque of a very talented driver.

Closing out the month I attended the 30th Anniversary celebrations of the British Motor Museum that is based at Gaydon. Built on the former proving ground of Rover Cars, and now the home of Jaguar Land Rover Group (JLR), it is an avant-garde building that houses the full history of British motor industry heritage, and I thoroughly recommend visiting if you are passing along the M40. Promoting childhood memories of Singer, Morris, Austin, Riley, Hillman and many more, it is heart-warming seeing those cars preserved in their original state. There is also a fine representation of British motorsport in the museum including Paddy Hopkirk’s winning Mimi Cooper S from the 1964 Monte Carlo Rally, one of Jackie Stewart’s 1971 March 701 Tyrrells, and the famous Jaguar XK120 from 1950 registration NUB120, that won the Tulip, Alpine Gold Cup and RAC rallies. It was not actually a works car but a privately owned one campaigned by Ian Appleyard and his wife Pat, the daughter of Jaguar founder Sir William Lyons, in the co-driver’s seat. This invoked a circular memory for me as when my father left as Competition Director of BMC in 1961, where Appleyard had been one of the Healey’s fiercest rivals. He went to work for Ian at his dealerships in Yorkshire, with our family in tow. Although the lure of topflight motorsport was too much for my father, who returned south within two years to head the Routes Competition department through the glorious days of Imps and Tigers, as well as the victorious Hunter in the ’68 London to Sydney, it was nice to touch a bit of history that connected to my own.

As we head swiftly towards the Christmas holidays, and the end of another year of competition, I must thank everyone in our wonderful community for all your contributions to an amazing season, full of so much enjoyment for so many. Wishing everyone a very well-earned rest and a joyful Christmas and New Year.

Best regards,
Hugh Chambers

Revolution asked its regular photographic contributors to select their Photo of The Year – these are the highlights that caught their eye

This season has seen Motorsport UK’s many Championships deliver top-class competition and plenty of dramatic action, from the front-runners in the British Touring Car Championship to the first timers in the Trials Championship; the flying future stars in British F4 to the open-wheel masters in Hill Climbing and Sprint Championships.

British Truck Racing Championship

In another blockbuster year for the super-sized series, a capacity entry list served up a feast of entertainment across seven race meetings and culminated in the crowning of two deserving champions in Ryan Smith and Paul Rivett – although the route they each took to their respective titles could not have been more contrasting.

As has been the case for the past seven years, Division 1 belonged to Smith as he comfortably powered his Daimler Freightliner to an unprecedented eighth consecutive championship victory. The multiple-champion was a tour-de-force with an incredible 16 race wins, 12 victories and 11 fastest laps across the 30-round championship.

In Division 2, however, there was nothing to separate Paul Rivett and Adam Bint in the battle for honours. In a campaign that saw the pendulum swing back-and-forth between the pair, each ended the season tied on points. Rivett triumphed on a tie-break, with his superior win tally of 18 to Bint’s six, netting the former Renault Clio Cup champion his first truck title.

Bradley Smith, Simon Reid, John Powell, Craig Evans, Michael Oliver, and John Bowler also played starring roles over the course of the season.

Scottish Rally Championship

One of the most open and competitive championship battles for years, it saw four different winners across the eight events, and was only decided on the final stage of the final Rally. David Henderson and Chris Lees leaped from third to first to claim the title in their Rally2 Fiesta, narrowly beating the Impreza of two-time Scottish Champion Jock Armstrong and Hannah McKillop.

John Crawford pipped the Rally4 Peugeot of reigning two-wheel-drive champion Peter Stewart to the title in his Mk2, again on the final round of the season, with Harry Marchbank retaining the co-drivers’ title. Scott Peacock and Craig Wallace took the Challengers Championship in their Evo 8; Robert Proudlock retained the Junior title in his Vauxhall Adam, and fellow Junior Driver Meghan O’Kane secured the Lady Drivers’ title in her Ford Fiesta.

Next season will feature seven events, with registrations opening in the New Year after publication of the Championship regulations.

British Touring Car Championship

Ash Sutton secured a record-equalling fourth title with victory in Race One of the season-finales at Brands Hatch in October. The returning champion, who was last year’s runner-up, took the crown back from Tom Ingram with six poles, 12 victories and 11 fastest laps across the 50-round championship.

Ingram put up a strong defence and his two outright wins do not tell the whole story. He was Mr Consistent with 15 further podiums, 22 top-five and 28 top-ten finishes staying on Sutton’s heels all the way. Jake Hill finished third and showed his future intent with victory in the final race of the season, concluding with six wins and 24 top-ten positions. The top three all graduated through the BTCC support package and next season already looks set to be a thriller.

British Autotest Championship

Alastair Moffatt had yet another successful year in his Mini Special, leading from the first round to win a record-breaking ninth title. He had competition for the overall title from Willie Keaning, in his Striker sportscar, and Richard Pinkney, also in the sportscar class, who was a potential contender, but who did not complete the full season.

Moffatt was the clear winner in the Specials class, while Dave Mosey won the Large Saloon class, having been run close by Warren Gillespie. Keaning beat Christopher Chapman to the Sportscars crown, and Cameron Pinkney was the only Junior driver in the field.

Events were held nationwide – from Herefordshire to Scotland, combining a mixture of tight, technical tests and fast sweeping manoeuvres that allowed the competitors to make their own mistakes. A return to the Coventry-Motofest in the city centre in June brought action to the people and drew in the crowds. Next season begins at Curborough in March.

The Intelligent Money British GT Championship

Darren Leung and Dan Harper were crowned champions in a dramatic Donington Park finale after overcoming the odds and chasing down a significant points deficit to overhaul season-long rival James Cottingham. Erik Evans and Matt Cowley achieved a similar feat, winning the final two races to pinch the GT4 crown from long-time leaders Jack Brown and Charles Clark.

Six crews were still in with a chance of securing the GT4 championship at the finale where Academy’s Mustang sensationally overturned its 16.5-point deficit and 46-second pitstop handicap – including maximum Compensation Time – to triumph in a typically topsy-turvy decider.

That performance was still somehow overshadowed by Harper’s heroics out front, where two Safety Car periods in the opening stint prevented Leung – who took the lead through Craners on lap one – from fully negating his 20 seconds of impending Compensation Time.

Championship permutations meant Century’s crew had to finish fifth at worst to have any hope of bridging Cottingham’s 13-point advantage, and that appeared unlikely when Harper re-joined in 13th. However, the BMW factory driver then embarked upon one of the series’ greatest-ever drives, to not only overhaul the 2 Seas Mercedes-AMG – which was subsequently hit with a penalty – but eventually fight through to finish second overall.

Five of this year’s nine wins were shared between Cottingham and Jonny Adam – who missed the finale due to clashing commitments elsewhere – and Leung and Harper. Shaun Balfe and Sandy Mitchell clinched their second win of the season at Donington’s finale, while the other two went to Jules Gounon and defending champion Ian Loggie, and John Ferguson and Raffaele Marciello.

British Endurance Championship

A close-run finish to this year’s Championship saw just five points cover the overall top three, after six events and 14 hours of competition. In the end, Brad Thurston, in only his second full season of racing, secured the overall and Class C titles with Team Hard in a Porsche 991, driving alongside Radical champion and rising BTCC star Daryl DeLeon, as well as occasional partners Adam Hatfield and Alex Sedgwick during the year.

A late-season flurry saw Chris Jones, Neville Jones and Matt George finish as overall runners-up, winning class honours in their Venture Innovations Mercedes GT4, while third overall, went to TCR Class victors Jonathan Breezer and George Heler in the Sheard Autosport Audi RS3.

Fuchs Lubricants Motorsport UK British Historic Rally Championship

A nail-biting season concluded with a head-to-head race for the crown between Roger Chilman with Patrick Walsh, and Nick Elliott alongside Dave Price. Chilman had a blistering start to the campaign, taking back-to-back victories, but his form faded mid-season. A Woodpecker Rally win put him back in contention and he was effectively handed the crown when Elliott beached his Fiat 131 Abarth for nine minutes on the opening stage of the Carlisle Stages.

Jason Pritchard and Phil Clarke also enjoyed three wins in their Ford Escort MK2, while the Porsche 911 of Richard Tuthill and Stephane Prevot took the Plains Rally victory.

Across the Championship, battles raged on for honours, with Josh Carr taking the drivers’ title and Mike Reynolds the co-driver crown in Category Two, for cars registered between 1968-1975. Terry Cree and Richard Shores picked up the title in Category One, for cars registered up to 1968, in their Mini Cooper.

The 2024 calendar sees the roster bolstered to nine events, with the best seven scores to count. It will also see the return to a mixed-surface championship, with several top-class closed-road asphalt events.

English Rally Championship

This class-based Championship took in seven of the best forest Rallies of the season and produced some excellent competition. Elliot Payne took the Championship lead in his Fiesta Rally2 with victory in the opening two events but only a handful of points separated the top few drivers for much of the season and it was Ernie Graham who took the title. Arron Newby, Robert Proudlock, Nigel Jenkins, Ben Friend, and Rob Wilson all scored maximums along the way, while Ernie Graham, who missed the opening round, took his immaculate MkI Escort RS1600 to maximum scores on the next four rounds to move into a commanding position as the series drew to a close.

The format of the English Rally Championship sees cars of similar engine capacity (and power) competing against each other, meaning that it is not necessarily the most powerful that rise to the top. This was illustrated by former champions Steve Black, in a 1400cc Suzuki Swift, and 2022 winner Nick Dobson’s Escort Mk2. Next year’s calendar retains the same seven events and kicks off in the Lake District with the Malcolm Wilson Rally in March.

British Indoor Karting Championship

The third season of this highly competitive championship saw 35 TeamSport venues across the UK host qualifying in five different categories. Each entrant had to set three flying laps between June and August to create an average time, with the 24 fastest averages in each category (20 in Cadets) going up against each other in a Local Final. The leading runners from those went into nine Regional Finals and the front-runners in those went into the National Finals.

In the under-16 age categories, Preston’s Eskild Hewitt completed his first year of karting by being crowned Cadet Champion while Basildon’s Bobby McGirr secured the Junior title. The over-16s saw Alfie Hale, from Stockton, win the Lightweight crown; Bristol’s Sam Slater take the Middleweight title at the very last second; and Harlow’s David Harvey become the Heavyweight Champion after taking pole at all levels of the final and winning every heat, semi-final and final he contested.

Northern Ireland Rally Championship

Jonny Greer took his fourth – and third successive – title but it was in the balance right up to the final round. Dominant wins at the first two events put Greer ahead, but his non-finish on the Maiden City Stages allowed winner Derek McGarrity to take the lead. He was still ahead at the season-ending Down Rally, which was won by Cathan McCourt, but Greer’s fourth place was enough to take the title and Desi Henry pushed McGarrity down to third with his co-driver Paddy Robinson taking the overall co-driver title. Drew Stewart topped the 2WD table while Conor Wilson took the FIA 2WD category, and the Junior Drivers and Jimmy Mills won the Historic title. Emma McKinstry won the Ladies award and Maiden City Motor Club repeated last year’s success in the Club Team competition.

In the Forest Rally Challenge, Ryan Caldwell won the first two rounds but a non-finish on the third proved costly as Darragh Cairns, who switched car during the season, sealed the title by taking maximum points in his new RS Skoda.

British Karting Championship

Britain’s top young motorsport talent battled it out in 13 different karting categories this year, with plenty of close competition throughout.

In IAME, Austin Gibson won the Water Swift Restricted title from Austin Newstead with seven top scores across the five-round season, while Jesse Phillips secured the crown in the Water Swifts despite a late challenge from Will Green. In the Junior X30s, Macauley Bishop won the title after a close battle with Taylor Orridge, with Gus Lawrence winning the Senior X30s after taking eight top scores, including five in a row.

In KZ2s, Morgan Porter recovered from a tough first round to secure six top scores from the remaining nine and seal the title. Yehan Kallychurn took the Junior TKM crown, 32 points ahead of Aidan Mitchell, while the TKM Extreme championship went to privateer Alfie Garford, who just pipped runner-up Charlie King. In the Honda Cadets, Ryan White won the title ahead of Max Taddei, while in the Bambinos the battle between eventual champion Harry Chapman and runner-up Ronnie Kempson went to the wire, with just four points separating the pair at the end of the year.

Rotax and Honda were the last to finish their season, at PFi in October. Just two points separated three drivers in MiniMax 950 before the final event and Cole Denholm secured the crown with victory in the final. Emerson Macandrew-Uren was crowned MicroMax champion despite a fine last-event effort from Kian Burnard. In Junior Rotax, title winner Macauley Bishop signed off a strong season with a triple victory in the last event, while Kai Hunter won two from three at the last event to confirm his Senior Rotax title.

Protyre Motorsport UK Asphalt Rally Championship

This was a season to remember as the series celebrated its 40th anniversary, with the title going down to the wire once again. Callum Black and Jack Morton arrived at the Rali Ceredigion double-header finale in fourth place, but a pair of maximum scores saw them rocket up the leader board and clinch their crown in sensational style after an impressive season in their Ford Fiesta Rally2.

Neil Roskell had been billed as the man to beat this year having finished third in 2021 and second in 2022. Sure enough, he and co-driver Andrew Roughhead led for most of the season, but the rule requiring competitors to drop two scores meant they finished runners-up for the second consecutive year.

Darren Atkinson put in a remarkable performance in his Escort Mk2 to claim third in the overall drivers’ standings, while also winning the class B13 and Escort Challenge titles. Equally impressive was William Hill, who dominated class B14 in his Ford Fiesta Rally3, co-driven by Richard Crozier. An enforced swap to a Fiesta R200 for Rali Ceredigion cost him third overall, but fourth was still an astounding achievement.

Next year will see the same seven rally / eight round format on some of the best closed road stage events, starting with the Legend Fires North West Stages in March.

British Rallycross Championship 5 Nations Trophy

Patrick O’Donovan became a two-time back-to-back champion despite missing several rounds this season as he dovetailed his title defence with a European Rallycross campaign. The London-born driver, who swapped his Ford Fiesta for a Peugeot 208 WRX, won every event he entered in the championship and beat two-time winner Jack Thorne to win with a double victory in a spectacular fireworks finale at Lydden Hill. Slawomir Woloch won the Supernational title ahead of Dave Van Beers and Phil Chicken.

Tyler McAlpin won the season’s final event to secure his maiden Junior title on count-back ahead of pre-event series leader Will Dowden. Max Weatherley became Swift Sport champion and Stephen Jones won his second RX150 crown after a battle with Nick Priddy. Dave Bellerby won the BMW Mini category, with last year’s Junior champion Max Langmaid securing the ALL4 title. Lee Wood wrapped up his Super Retro title-winning season with victory in the final round and Tony Lynch topped the table in the Retros.

ROKIT British F4

This was one of the closest and most exciting seasons to date, with 12 different winners and 21 different drivers on the podium during the 30 races. The final round at Brands Hatch saw all three titles come down to the wire for the ninth year in a row.

Rodin Carlin driver Louis Sharp was crowned champion after edging Hitech Pulse-Eight’s Will MacIntyre by one point in the final round. The duo has been inseparable throughout the season, and they were closely followed by JRH’s Deagen Fairclough in the top three. Chris Dittmann Racing’s Gustav Jonsson claimed top Rookie Cup honours over Gabriel Stilp of Hitech Pulse Eight, while the Teams Cup was won by Rodin Carlin thanks to 15 victories from drivers Louis Sharp, Dion Gowda, Josh Irfan, and Noah Lisle across the year.

The race format included a new complete reverse grid race this season and it proved a big success, providing plenty of overtaking action as well as giving drivers such as Stilp and Gowda and JRH’s Sonny Smith their first F4 wins. Next season is already shaping up to be an exciting one, with the championship continuing to support the British Touring Car Championship at most rounds.

Photographer: Mike Hoyer

British Sporting Car Trials Championship

A competitive season saw eight different winning drivers through 18 events, with the best 10 counting towards the championship. Thomas Bricknell secured the title with a consistent performance that saw him take maximum points in six events and second in five.

Stuart Beare and Richard Sharp started well, winning the first and second trials, but four consecutive wins before the summer break put Bricknell in control and consistent scoring, including wins at the David Ayres and Roy Fedden Trials, kept his points tally out of reach.

Bob Packham topped the Live Axle classes, winning four events to take a clear advantage into the final rounds after Matt Sharp, who finished runner-up, took himself out of the class when he bought an independent car in the summer.

Championship Review

British Rally Championship

It was a dominant season for M-Sport’s factory driver Adrien Fourmaux and co-driver Alexandre Coria, with five wins from five starts, handing them the title with a round to spare. The pair dovetailed their campaign with a WRC2 programme, gaining seat time and car upgrades that ultimately led to a Rally1 outing at WRC Japan.

Just two other contenders were able to stand on the top step of the podium, with James Williams and Dai Roberts claiming the Rali Ceredigion victory, and Garry Pearson and Hannah McKillop winning the Cambrian Rally, a victory that also secured Pearson second overall in the championship.

In contrast, the battle for the Junior honours went down to the wire, with both Kyle White and Kyle McBride in with a shout at the final round of the season in Wales. In the end, White’s four wins against McBride’s one put him in the box seat and a Cambrian finish was enough to secure him the crown he had been longing for since 2021.

Alan Carmichael took back-to-back National Rally Titles and was joined by Claire Williams in the co-driver’s seat. A revitalised championship follows in 2024, bolstered by a brand-new calendar with six gravel and asphalt rounds and plenty of newcomers set to join the regular competitors.

British Car Trial Championship

There was a new name at the top this year as father and son pairing Tim and Charlie Dovey stepped up from regional racing to take on the national challenge. Tim ended the season as the outright winner, while Charlie secured top Junior spot.

The season started in North Wales in April with past Champion Rupert North driving his Suzuki Alto to a double victory on a rocky and deeply muddy course. The next event at Ivinghoe, however, was smoother and drier, and on the narrow, tight hills Tim Dovey used the nimbleness of his two-litre Clio Sport to claim his first win of the season.

A double-header in Somerset saw Tim Dovey and past Champion Barrie Parker share the spoils, setting a pattern that would continue through the remaining rounds in Telford, Ross on Wye, Yorkshire, and Wales. At the final round in Bridgnorth, the WSSC Gaby Mohr Trial, Tim Dovey consolidated his championship lead with an outright win ahead of Parker in second.

The 2024 championship is likely to follow a similar format, but with a modified class structure to include a wider range of cars and stages of modification.

Pirelli Welsh Rally Championship
Matthew Hirst and Declan Dear secured a record-equalling third title after another bumper season saw 165 competitors register for the championship. The pair sealed their success with victory in the Wyedean Stages Rally in November, mastering the wet, muddy conditions in their Ford Fiesta R5. Simon Rogers secured the runner-up spot after one of his best seasons in his Mitsubishi Evo 6.

Callum Griffiths became the Junior champion, in a Fiesta ST with co-driver William Lewis, after a very close and exciting battle with Sam Mason, who only passed his driving test earlier this year but claimed the runner-up spot and class W4 title with co-driver James Seymour in their SM Autocare Ford Fiesta.

Ivan Roberts Jnr and Daniel Jones won the 2WD title in their Ford Escort G3. Callum Griffiths (first FWD) and Boyd Kershaw (first RWD) were second and third. The opening round of the 2024 Championship is the Get Jerky Rally North Wales on Saturday 16 March.

British Drag Racing Championship
Bobby Wallace became the youngest champion since the Pro Modified class began in 2007, driving his US-built Chevrolet Camaro. The 30-year-old's astonishing title-winning car is powered by a naturally aspirated, petrol-burning, 14.8-litre V8, boosted by nitrous oxide. It is Britain’s quickest Pro Mod at 5.837sec over the quarter mile.

Wallace enjoyed a rare streak of success that started back in 2022 at the FIA European Finals and saw him reach the final in six consecutive rounds, winning four. His only defeats came in the FIA/Motorsport UK finals to Sweden’s all-conquering FIA champion Jan Ericsson. The streak ended abruptly in September, however, with first-round exits at both the European and National Finals – but by then, Wallace had the British Championship all sewn up.

Two racers with little previous success also provided standout performances, with Wayne Nicholson making the final in four of the six events, and France’s Jean Dallamon scoring his maiden Pro Mod victory at the National Finals.

Next year there is a vacancy at the top of the European scene, with Jan Ericsson retiring after three consecutive FIA championships. At home, eight-time champion Andy Robinson – Britain’s fastest Pro Mod at 249.05mph – after a 2023 title, the championship battle came down to the final days of the season.

SBD HSA British Sprint Championship
After a season that comprised 41 run-offs on nine different racing circuits, with the best 18 scores counting towards the title, the championship battle came down to the final days of competition at Castle Combe.

Pete Goulding and Graham Blackwell, both driving 1.6T modified Mygale Ecbosts, were kept on their toes by Steve Miles in a 2.0 Van Diemen all season, and heading into the final run, Goulding had 443 points with Blackwell just a single point behind. The pressure may have got to Goulding, as he forgot to correctly fuel his 3.3 miles of the Wiltshire circuit when it counted, but despite a splutter out of the last chicane, he took the win by 0.18 seconds to secure the title.

Outside of the top three, the season also saw run-off wins from a wide range of drivers and cars. Simon Bainbridge kicked off at Cadwell in March winning in the wet in his 750bhp Sports Libre, and then won again at Kirkistown and Pembrey. Last year’s champion Matt Hillam was now in a 1.4 DI shared with Steve Broughton, and the two took several run-offs between them. Chris Jones notched up wins at Pembrey and Lydden, in a 1.0 Force TA, while John Loudon joined the club at Blyton, putting his 1.1 Force ahead of the rest. A one-off appearance by Stewart Robb in a 5.0 Pilbeam showed he had not lost his touch, while Alex Summers secured an impressive four wins at Anglesey in his self-built 2.5 P4.

British Hillclimb Championship
Wallace Menzies secured his fourth title in another classic season, becoming a member of a very exclusive club and joining Ken Wharton (1951-54) as the winner of four consecutive Championship victories. Twelve run-off wins, with new outright records at both Val des Terres in Guernsey, and Wiscombe Park, showed Wallace’s class.

It was a fantastic result for Wallace and his team, ably led by Crew Chief Tom New, considering a car-damaging accident at Shelsley Walsh in August. The team pulled together to deliver a huge repair job and enabled him to finish the season and secure the title.

Wallace’s closest challenger, Scott Moran, finished with a flourish, taking two hard-earned victories at Prescott at the start of September and ending up with eight run-off victories in total in his Judd-engined Gould GR59J. Matt Ryder had an excellent second full season in big single seaters, driving the Gould GR59J he shares with constructor Sean Gould, to secure five run-off victories and third place overall, ahead perhaps, of a title challenge in 2024.

Roger Albert Clark Rally 2023

Britain’s most challenging special stage rally praised

Huge crowds gathered in Carmarthen for the start of the biennial Roger Albert Clark (R.A.C.) historic rally which would be won or lost on 350-miles of competitive stages set in the legendary forests of Wales, Scotland, and England. With an entry list including top international stars such as Kris Meeke, Osian Pryce, and Oliver Solberg – all armed with feisty Ford Escorts – the competition was fiercer than ever.

It was Irish driver Marty McCormack who won the five-day event, which finished in Carlisle. Speaking at the finish, McCormack said: “Nothing is ever certain on this rally and when I ended up in a ditch on Saturday, I would not have thought that I would have been standing here today, but that’s what a rally like the R.A.C. is all about.”

Even though none of the top international rally drivers made it to the finish, the Roger Albert Clark is being widely hailed as what a rally like the R.A.C. is all about. “I look at it as a legacy for the sport, getting the next generation of spectators, competitors, and volunteers into our sport by giving them the opportunity to see rallying as it used to be.”

Revolution sends its congratulations to everyone involved in this magnificent classic rally.

Tribute

Rosemary Smith

Rosemary Smith, an Irish motorsport icon who became synonymous in the UK rally scene and drove for UK manufacturer Rootes, has sadly passed aged 86.

Smith’s incredible motorsport career commenced in the 1950s and 1960s, initially as a rally co-driver. A love for the driver’s seat saw a role change and that caught the eye of the Rootes Group’s Competition Department who offered her a works drive.

In 1964 she clinched the ladies prize at the Circuit of Ireland Rally and one year later, in 1965, she claimed the outright victory in the Dutch Tulip Rally, competing alongside Britain’s Valerie Domleo in a factory-entered Hillman Imp.

She competed in eight Monte Carlo rallies, took multiple victories at renowned stages at the Scottish Rally and finished some of the most arduous long-distance events – the London to Sydney rally in 1968 followed by the 1970 London to Mexico rally.

Alongside her rallying, she was a well-regarded circuit racer, competing at events such as the 12 Hours of Sebring and Goodwood Revival.

Generous with her time and sharing of knowledge, she set up a driving school in the 1990s to support the aspirations of young drivers.

In 2017, at the age of 79, Smith became the oldest person to drive a current specification Formula 1 car, testing the 800bhp Renault Sport F1 at Circuit Paul Ricard in France.

On her passing, Hugh Chambers, Motorsport UK Chief Executive Officer, commented, “Rosemary was a legend of the UK and International rally world, and along with Pat Moss paved the way for women winning world class rallies outright, such as the 1965 Tulip Rally. She was an effervescent character who will be missed by all in the community.”

McLaren Racing welcomes Girls on Track UK to its flagship DE&I programme

Girls on Track UK has announced a new partnership with McLaren Racing. We are really excited about this partnership and the incredible opportunities it will create for our Girls on Track UK Community members.

McLaren Racing Engage, the team’s flagship Diversity, Equity & Inclusion (DE&I) programme, is adding Girls on Track UK in its roster of strategic partners to foster a more diverse and inclusive culture in motorsport. Girls on Track UK will join McLaren Racing Engage’s other strategic partners to drive meaningful and sustained change in the industry, including Creative Access, Path to the Pits, Smallpiece Trust, and Women’s Engineering Society.

Diversity, Equity & Inclusion is a key pillar of McLaren’s Sustainability Strategy, and the team wants to be the most diverse and inclusive team in sport, setting a target of 40 per cent of its people to come from underrepresented groups by 2030. McLaren has already made some great progress towards this, with 36 per cent of new starters hailing from underrepresented backgrounds in 2023 alone.

Kate O’Hara-Hatchley, Head of Diversity, Early Careers & Development, McLaren Racing, said: “We’re extremely proud of our McLaren Racing Engage programme, the first of its kind in F1 when we launched it. Driving an inclusive and diverse team is an ongoing process, but something we are committed to for the long-term together with brilliant partners such as Girls on Track UK.”

Just last month 48 Girls on Track UK Community members (aged 18-24) visited the NEOM McLaren Electric Racing HQ at Bicester Heritage for a behind-the-scenes tour. Around 150 members applied for the opportunity, and from this 48 were selected. This group of 48 community members were all either studying in further education, or had plans to, and between them had a real mixture of areas of interest. Many were studying on Engineering and STEM-based courses, while a large number were also interested in media, communications, and marketing within the motorsport profession.

The aim of the day was for the Girls on Track UK visitors was to:
- Learn more about electric racing,
- Meet staff from a range of roles within the McLaren team,
- Connect and network with similar age groups and interests from the community,
- Find out more about the McLaren early careers opportunities.

It is hoped that this group of aspiring students will be able to visit to the McLaren Technology Centre in Woking next year, to learn more about the career opportunities at McLaren, such as its Graduate Programmes and Internships.

McKeown pips Mutch in nail-biting finale

The final round of the 2023 British F4 Esports Championship was set to be a barnstormer, with the top two competitors level on points ahead of the Brands Hatch GP finale (after post-race penalties had been applied).

In Round 7, Luke McKeown and Gordie Mutch had moved clear of mid-season leader Peter Berryman, with the Northern Irishman requiring a big slice of luck at Brands to seal the title. Although McKeown held a slight points advantage going into the event, it meant nothing considering the pace and strength-in-depth of the British F4 Esports field, complimented with a partially reversed grid for Race 2.

As a result, the points battle featured several twists and turns throughout Round 8 – matching the sweeping nature of Brands Hatch’s GP loop – and setting up for a dramatic conclusion to the championship battle.

Race One

In qualifying Stanley Deslandes headed team-mate Mutch on the front row of the grid. They were closely followed by the Stormforce Racing ART pair of McKeown and Berryman, with the in-form Moreno Sirica of Williams Esports just behind in fifth.

The first four remained fixed in the opening stages before Mutch made a move down the inside of Deslandes at Druids, sending him off.

McKeown seized the lead of the race and was followed by his team-mate as Mutch dropped to third. On the final lap, Berryman launched a decisive attack on McKeown for the lead, eventually making the move at Sheene's. Mutch tried to capitalise, but McKeown held him off at the line.

With victory in Race One, Berryman had kept his slim championship hopes alive, and with the reversed grid draw putting him sixth for Race 2, it was very much game on. Just four points separated McKeown and Mutch in the crucial battle for top spot.

Race Two

Stanley Deslandes started from pole position, eager to take his first win of the campaign. For Berryman, however, his championship hopes were dashed on lap one after an off at Hawthorn Bend.

Mutch and McKeown were third and fourth respectively, until Mutch made a bold move around the outside of Josh Lad at Hawthorn. The pair ran side-by-side through Westfield Bend and Dingle Deli before Mutch eased through at Sheene's – impressively brave given this now moved the Lockerbie-based driver into a championship-winning position.

Even better for the Scotsman was that his team-mate Deslandes was the only other driver ahead of him, potentially offering more points if he moved aside.

Things looked worse for McKeown as Ted Bradbury overtook at Druids after an aggressive dive into Paddock Hill Bend. McKeown now had the recovering Berryman for company just behind.

Bradbury tapped third-place Lad on the exit of Clark Curve, which allowed McKeown back ahead, but another Bradbury lunge soon reversed the positions again. After a thrilling battle between all four protagonists, McKeown was able to squeeze ahead of Lad before making a firm move stick on Bradbury.

Bradbury re-passed McKeown quickly, but a poor run out of Stirling's allowed both McKeown and Berryman through as the race concluded. With Mutch gaining a point for fastest lap both he and McKeown were dead level in the standings. McKeown would clinch the title on countback thanks to more fifth-place finishes.

At this point if Deslandes allowed team-mate Mutch to take the win, then Mutch would be champion. However, this did not happen, and McKeown was confirmed as champion as he crossed the line in third.

JHR by 29 eSports could console themselves with a dominant one-two finish in the final race of the season. It certainly bodes well for 2024, but it will take some effort to wrest the crown from 2023’s dominant team, the Stormforce Racing ART outfit of McKeown and Berryman.

Moore and Amor on top of the FF1600 table

Henry Moore stamped his authority all over the championship by claiming pole position for the final round. The race quickly settled into a dramatic seven-way fight for the lead, with Moore, Cooper and Amor joined by Isaac Phelps, Connor Skudal, Simon Ball and Ronnie Smith, with Brands Hatch’s Grand Prix loop tending itself well to close slipstreaming battles.

However, the race win came down to a head-to-head fight between Amor and Moore on the final straight, with Moore edging ahead by just 0.005s, at the line after a scintillating battle, cementing his position as the inaugural UK F11600 Esports Cup champion.

For the reverse grid second race, Amor and Moore started seventh and eighth respectively with Leigh Britten in pole position. Within four corners Ronnie Smith had made his way to the front with both Moore and Amor hitting trouble on lap one. Smith and Jack Badger made a significant break at the front of the field, with Moore collecting a wayward car on the racing line. He pitted for repairs, but his race was effectively over. Smith managed to hold on out front, though, securing third in the championship.

As champion and vice-champion, Moore and Amor are guaranteed to be on the British F4 Esports Championship grid in 2024. And with Moore’s incredible 2023 form catching the eyes of several top teams, a championship push cannot be ruled out.

Formula E wins Net Zero Strategy Award

Formula E’s world-leading net zero carbon strategy has won the edie Net-Zero Award, reaffirming the championship’s position as the most sustainable sport on the planet. Formula E’s net zero carbon strategy was commended for its ambition in reducing overall emissions in the ABB FIA Formula E World Championship by 45 per cent by 2030. Formula E remains the only sport in the world to be net zero carbon from inception in 2014.

Since making the commitment in 2020, when Formula E became the first sport to have its emissions reduction targets validated by the Science Based Target Initiative (SBTi), it is more than halfway to achieving the 2050 target across Scopes 1, 2 and 3, having reduced championship emissions by 28 per cent in just three years.

"With ten years of racing under our belt our mission is not only to remain the most sustainable sport on the planet, but to inspire and encourage other sports and sectors to do more and move faster.”

Julia Palle, Vice President, Sustainability, at Formula E

Double success at BASIS Awards

Extreme E won two prestigious accolades at the third Annual British Association for Sustainable Sport (BASIS) Awards last month. Extreme E received the Strategic Leadership Award, while the championship’s Social Impact and Fan Engagement Strategist, Naganethra Reddy, won the highly coveted Rising Star Award. Extreme E’s double success at this year’s celebration of sustainability in sport reinforces the series’ strong environmental performance.

This the first of six planned books documenting the history of Scotland’s premier national motor sporting competition, the ‘Scottish Rally Championship’.

Scottish’s four world rally champions, Louise Atkinson-Walker, Colin McRae, Derek Ringer, and Robert Reid all started their careers through this national competition. The first book covers the decade 1980-1989 and includes previously unpublished information and photographs from Colin McRae’s early years in the sport. As such this book will appeal to a wide rally-fanbase.

Work has already commenced on the next book, covering 1990-1999, and will include more previously unpublished material.

2024 – NOW IS THE TIME TO PREPARE!

Get your finance sorted for next season

As the 2023 season draws to a close after what seems to have been a very fast and turbulent year, now is the time to reflect on the season’s expenditure and what you may need for next year. The capital outlay for any team, can be and often is expensive and a juggle even for the best funded organisations. If you have a well-established business with a strong financial backing, you will no doubt be aware of how your capital can be easily absorbed, putting strain on your cashflow. Unexpected events such as serious car damage can obviously impact your projected budgets.

Motorsport at all levels is inherently expensive and any unforeseen circumstances can and often knock a team off course. Being well funded and well prepared is the key to ensuring a season with minimal disruption. At this time of year, your focus will be in finding a paying seat for 2024 which will generate the needed income to go racing. Before any contract is signed, this can be a drawn out and volatile time as teams attempt to encourage the drivers who bring in the most money. To do this means you have to have an attractive and well set up team and modern facilities to support your drivers into podium positions.

As the supporting finance partner of Motorsport UK, Classic and Sports Finance has developed a diverse mixture of funding packages for all aspects of motorsport. From asset purchases large and small, to the realisation of capital from assets currently owned. You may not realise the value of your equipment, which could be currently unencumbered and used to raise that ever-valuable operating capital. From the purchase of cars to equipment at whatever level, Classic and Sports Finance offers an open discussion to learn how it can help your business.

Talk to Classic and Sports Finance about its market competitive and innovative packages today.

Finance is available for many levels of motorsport and extends beyond a race car. For further information and to discuss the options available for your team, contact Classic and Sports Finance on 01869 351 512 or email enquiries@classicandsportsfinance.com

Safety on the Ranges

Throughout each year, Motorsport UK clubs visit around 150 Ministry of Defence (MOD) owned venues to run their club motorsport events. For 2023, and in to 2024, the MOD has increased the training exercises it is running for our troops and military personnel, and this is reducing the availability of some MOD sites for motorsport use.

In response to this, Motorsport UK is already working with many Military Liaison Officers (MLOs) to explore alternative sites and other forms of access for motorsport on MOD land.

The MOD encourages public access but only when and where it is safe to do so, and would ask that activities are appropriate and respect the ongoing preservation and sustainability of the training estate. For any member of the public accessing MOD land, it is essential that they observe the signs. Don’t enter an area where there’s a red flag flying and respect the training area for what it is. There are online timetables that you can check before you head out – see www.gov.uk/government/organisations/ministry-of-defence/series/firing-notice for more information.

The Motorsport UK Academy has continued to build some of Britain’s brightest future stars this season, with its success celebrated through the crowning of 11 Champions and two Vice-Champions.

The four different programmes provide drivers and co-drivers with a range of motorsport skills, ranging from fitness and nutrition to PR and marketing, and its 2023 champions cover a wide range of disciplines including Rallying, Sportscars, Single-seaters and Rallycross. Revolution caught up with many of the title winners to find out more about their success.

Jon Armstrong
Academy Programme: Team UK
Champion: ERC3 European Rally Driver’s Championship

I had a strong relationship with M-Sport Poland from competing in Junior WRC and had also been involved in development of the Ford Fiesta Rally3, so I was asked to debut the Rally3 Evo in the ERC3 Championship. I partnered with Cameron for most of the season, we netted some solid points in the opening rounds and it just got better and better.

The Academy helped me to prepare well and not overthink things and the support on fitness and diet improved my performance over long rally weeks. We won the title at Rally Di Roma Capitale, but it felt strange because I was declared Champion before the event started as my closest rival did not enter – so I was actually spraying champagne before the start ramp!

Ella Lloyd
Programme: Team UK Futures
Vice-Champion: Ginetta GT5

Having competed in Ginetta Juniors last year in what was my first season of racing, it made sense to make GT5 Pro my next step. I joined Xentek Motorsport because they are a Championship winning team and the first weekend went particularly well – I won the first two races from pole and set the fastest lap!

I worked hard with the team and my coach, going through data after every session and race and also worked on my endurance to help my concentration. The Academy also gave me a lot of tools and knowledge to use, including fitness, nutrition, sleep training and sport psychology. Through the season I managed to win races in six of the eight rounds.

Programme: Team UK Futures
Champion: GB4

When my family and I decided to take on the challenge of circuit racing three years ago, I never thought I would get to this position. To win this year felt absolutely unreal. We had a rollercoaster of a year, but we managed to keep the results ticking over to claim the title come the finale at Brands.

It was amazing to win, not only for myself but for the incredible EXCELER8 motorsport team, who have worked so hard to get this position. The team is amazing to be a part of and it has definitely been a year to remember, something I will cherish forever.
This was my final season in the Junior category, so we put a lot into it this year. I was in a team with my dad and we spent a lot of time in the workshop. I used a lot of skills from my Academy course to help me win the title – particularly the eSports, motor vehicle and sport lessons. It really helped me prepare mentally and physically, which I found hard in the past.

It all came down to the very last round and in the end, I finished just ahead of second-placed runner Tyler McAlpin. That made the feeling of victory even better when I crossed the line! It was a surreal moment and I came through punching the air with joy. There is nothing quite like that feeling!

I was with Carlin (now Rodin Carlin) in GB3 last year and had a few wins, so it made sense to stay together for another year. The standard of the grid was extremely high and we did not have the outright pace at first, but we did a lot of work looking at data, using the sim and trying to improve my technique and the car set-up. The Academy helped me to learn where to stay calm, pick my opportunities and remain positive, and that really helped me on the last weekend. I was leading the points, but there were five drivers who could win the title and it was a reverse-grid, so I was starting 24th. I needed to finish 12th – and I did. It was my first championship and it was the best feeling!

I won the title last year with Subaru Motorsports USA and with their new 23R car in the pipeline I decided to defend the title and be part of that development process. The aim was to become back-to-back champions and our season went in the best way possible – winning every rally!

The second round was our closest battle – we only won that by 6.8 seconds! We did a lot of homework and the Academy really helped with my preparation, communication and ability to multitask. We took the crown at round six – which was quite a contrast from 2022, when it went to the final Rally of the year.

ACADEMY ROUND-UP

Will Tregurtha
Programme: Team UK
Champion: British GT Silver-Am GT3

My team-mate Mark and I competed in British GT last year and switched to the Lamborghini Huracan GT3 with Barwell Motorsport this year. The first races were great, albeit a little eventful – we almost had a wheel come off in the initial race – and we worked together really well on debriefs, planning and execution, which gave me great confidence in the team.

To pull off a professional result, you need a professional mindset, and the Academy provided me with maturity, confidence, and good coaching. We won the title on the second to last lap of the season, with a big move down the inside to win the final race! It felt incredible. We had fought all race for it, so there was a lot of relief and a bucket load of pride!

Cameron Fair
Programme: Co-Driver Graduate
Champion: ERC3 European Rally Co-Drivers’ Championship

I had decided to make this season a quiet one after the birth of my son, but Craig Breen’s death made me realise life can be short, so when Jon Armstrong called about doing Rally Canaries, I went for it – and that led to a season in the ERC! We won our class in the first few events and worked hard to fine-tune the car to the local conditions and terrains.

Jon was already champion going into Rally di Roma but we had to finish first for me to win the co-drivers’ title. Starting the final stage, I was pretty nervous, the mind playing games with you, so the relief when we went over the line was huge. We got on top of the car and celebrated – a special moment I will not forget!

Theo Micouris
Programme: Team UK Futures
Champion: Radical Cup (SR1 and Overall)

Initially, we did not plan on racing as we did not have the budget but I tried out the Radical and immediately showed great pace so we decided to take part. I managed to win my first race, which was also my car racing debut, and I just continued to keep picking up wins at every track I went to!

The Academy has really helped me improve my performance in all aspects, from fitness to business and media, and in the 18 races we had 9 wins, 17 podiums, 15 fastest laps and three SR1 lap records. I won the title a few races early, so I spent the final race weekend celebrating – but on the way home, I had to revise for a school exam the next day!
Max Langmaid
Programme: Team UK Futures
Champion: BTRDA All4 and British Rallycross All4

I had won the Junior Rallycross title two years in a row and when a chance came up to drive the Mini All4 I could not refuse! It was more than twice the horsepower I was used to, so it was a steep learning curve but I won my first race in the BTRDA. The car failed on the first British Rallycross round, though, and it took some time to understand and fix all the issues. Both titles went down to the wire. I won the BTRDA at Knockhill with a good weekend but winning the BRX 5 Nations at Lydden Hill was more fraught. I had clutch issues that were fixed just before the final and I was leading two laps from the end when the car started to lose power. Fortunately, my Academy training helped me stay calm and defend to the finish!

Callum Davies
Programme: Enhanced DiSE
Vice-Champion: Ginetta GT Pro

I wanted to make the step up from karting this year so I had some test days in a Ginetta and when they launched GT Pro as a brand-new championship for 2023, we signed up. I was the youngest driver in the field and had never driven any of the tracks, but I was on the pace in testing and I took a pole, fastest lap and three podiums from the first three races. I started at the Academy in September, and it is proving to be the best choice because of the access to experienced coaches and facilities and the camaraderie with other drivers. The vice championship went down to the wire at Donington, but I won the first race to stretch my advantage then got the finish I needed in the second to make it certain.

Sitting On 15th November 2023
Case No J2023-32
Guy Spollon (Chairman), Kelvin Nicholls, Nigel Thorne
Motorsport UK versus Dylan Roberts, Licence Number 362717

The essential facts in this case are:

1. On 20th September 2023 Dylan Roberts applied for a rally media accreditation. As part of that application applicants must provide proof of £5,000 Public Liability insurance. Mr Roberts sent to Motorsport UK an insurance certificate as part of his application. This certification immediately raised concerns as to its authenticity because the insurance certificate appeared to have been altered.

2. Mr Roberts was therefore summoned to appear before this court for submitting a fraudulent insurance certificate as part of his rally media accreditation application in breach of National Competition Rules C.1.1.3 and C.1.1.4.

3. On 9th November Ms Sophie Brown, Motorsport UK Assistant Legal Counsel, contacted Mr Dylan Roberts by telephone to ensure that he had received the summons sent to him on 2nd November 2023 and to ascertain that he understood why he was being summoned to attend the National Court. Mr Roberts was specifically asked whether the submitted insurance certificate was genuine as it appeared to have been taken from someone else’s policy and altered to include his details. Mr Roberts maintained that:
   a) He “did not know where the certificate came from”.
   b) He did not want Ms Brown to provide details of the certificate so that he might clarify the position with his insurance provider.
   c) He was unable to attend court and declined an offer remotely to attend court.
   d) No paperwork should be sent to his address as it was too stressful for him.

4. During a subsequent telephone conversation between Ms Brown and Mr Roberts, Mr Roberts stated that:
   a) He had sent Motorsport UK the wrong certificate.
   b) He could not send the correct certificate to Motorsport UK as he no longer had a laptop.
   c) He was not interested in calling his insurers to clarify whether the certificate submitted was legitimate.
   d) He had ill-health, including having suffered three strokes which had left him with memory problems.
   e) He did not want any help from Ms Brown.
   f) He wanted Ms Brown to explain to the court that he would not be attending court.

5. The court concluded that:
   a) The insurance certificate submitted by Mr Roberts was a forgery.
   b) Despite repeated offers from Ms Brown to help him, Mr Roberts had been deliberately evasive, obstructive, and unhelpful.
   c) Mr Roberts had deliberately pursued a course of contact that was dishonest.
   d) Mr Roberts had breached Regulations C.1.1.3 and C.1.1.4.

6. The court considers any form of fraudulent application to Motorsport UK to be very serious and accordingly:
   a) Mr Roberts’ marshal’s licence is suspended forthwith.
   b) Mr Roberts is prohibited from holding or applying for any Motorsport UK licence for a period of four years.
   c) Any future application by Mr Roberts for any licence should be most carefully scrutinised by those responsible at Motorsport UK for issuing Motorsport UK licences.
   d) There is to be a fine of £1,000.
   e) Mr Roberts additionally must pay a contribution to the costs of these proceedings in the sum of £500.

CLUB CORNER

Stockport 061 Motor Club

One of the oldest Motor Clubs in the country, Stockport 061 is going from strength to strength thanks to its involvement with Regional Associations.

Not every Club runs an annual marshalling competition, but Stockport 061 has been doing so for longer than President Nancy Russell can remember. Many members enjoy standing by a Rally stage almost as much as driving through one, so that prize is highly sought after.

“Marshalling is almost as big as competing,” says Russell. “We have a lot of people who want to come marshalling with us, and I never considered that having the championship was a bit unusual, because we have always had it. My niece, Adele, only came into it in the last 12 months or so, but she won the novice championship last year.

“The club was founded in 1903 as the New Stockport and District Motor Cycle and Light Car Club and is credited with being the third oldest motorsport Club in the UK. In 2007, it merged with close neighbour High Peak and 061 Motor Club, after the respective chairmen recognised the benefit of combining the two vast pools of knowledge.

The Club also supports and collaborates with Motor Sport (North West) Ltd., which brings together the resources of several motor clubs to promote a closed road Rally in the North West of England, the proceeds of which go to charitable causes. All these collaborations have worked extremely well to get members engaged at a wider level.

“We are really good at pooling knowledge and resources,” says Russell. “It is not about ‘we are better than you’ which I think it used to be a bit in motorsport. Everybody needs each other and it is good to support and take the workload together. The North West stages, for example, was an amalgamation of North West clubs all working very closely.”

The Club runs two flagship events of its own – the 061 Targa Rally and the SMC Stages Rally at Anglesey – along with occasional StreetCar AutoSOLOs and monthly navigational scatters. It also has a weekly pub night, pub quizzes and video nights that attract a wider group, and an active monthly committee meeting.

Russell, whose husband was an important and long-serving member of the Club until he sadly passed away last year, says: “It is a real family atmosphere. Most members bring along their children, aged from 40s to 10, and having the generations coming through is encouraging other young members to have a go at club night events, which is great.

“Hopefully we will be able to keep that going, because a lot of the time in motorsport you do not get many young people joining, particularly when it comes to the marshalling side of things. We do Targa rallies and Historic marshalling, so the children can come to those and 13- or 14-year-olds can have a go as Cadet Marshals.

“It worries me that the average age of marshals is going up and up and up and every Rally is calling out for marshals. That is why I am proud that we get the younger people out doing it with us. We also have wheelchair users marshalling, competing, and organising club events.

“We thrive on training up new interested members and enjoy when questions are asked, and they want to learn. Most of us are, or have been, navigators and that helps make good marshals because it is so different when you know what is happening in the car. I think that is why we have so many great Clerks of the Courses and Stage Commanders.”
The club organises the StreetCar AutoSOLOs alongside its rallying events. The Club held a special event to celebrate its 120th anniversary earlier this year, where the guest of honour was European Rally Champion Chris Ingram, who started his motorsport journey with the Club, and whose family is still well connected to it.

"I went around with a wandering microphone and was pulling people out of the audience to talk with them," she recalls. "We had stories from an eclectic mix of members, old and new, including father and daughter AutoSOLO competitors, road rally competitors, as well as Chris and his dad."

"One thing that is important for me is that we are not all out in big R5s, we also have members doing low-key Road Rallying. We aim to support with any form of motorsport – a lad came a few weeks ago, for example, wanting to do our Targa Rally and we helped him understand what happens and what he needed to do.

“We have supported Chris Ingram when he has fundraised in pursuit of his rallying goal. His father Jonathan joined the Club in the 70s, around the same time as I did, and we are still encouraging Chris to come and marshal in our stage in the Cambrian this year – because we think anyone can learn a huge amount from marshalling!"

Four-time FIA Touring Car Champion Andy Priaulx recalls his most memorable motorsport moment on British soil

Event: World Touring Car Championship – Brands Hatch
Date: September 2007
Car: BMW320si

Priaulx started out Hill Climbing with his father Graham and won the British title in 1995. He competed in Formula Renault UK and British F3 before making his full season British Touring Car Championship debut with Honda in 2002. He joined BMW in the FIA European Championship in 2003, and won the title in his second year, then followed that up with a hat-trick of World titles. He continued racing with BMW in sportscars and endurance racing, and now supports son Seb in IMSA SportsCars.

This was my first Touring Car win in my home race at Brands Hatch, in front of a lot of my friends from Guernsey, but it also came very soon after I had lost a good friend, Colin McRae, in a helicopter accident. I had been out with him just a few weeks before and it was hard to come to terms with what had happened.
We were all in shock, but I was fighting for the World Championship as a factory driver for BMW UK and we just had to get on with it. It is horrible, but it has been like that for my whole career – so you have just got to take the moment and I think that gave me a lot of determination, to get the chance to remember him on the podium.

At the time, World Touring Cars was a really big thing and it was super competitive. Gabriele Tarquini was one of my biggest rivals – I liked him and respected him a lot, but he would drive over you to win! Rickard Rydell and Alain Menu were also in their prime, and BMW had six world-class factory drivers, including Alex Zanardi, who was a great team-mate. The series was run with ballast and reverse grids, so if you were winning and fighting for the title you were always on the back foot. I had been dominant in that period, so it was quite tricky. I would end up down the grid and must get into the top eight in the first race to benefit from the reverse grid and make the car as wide as possible in the second race!

Everyone used to say ‘oh, you used the reverse grid, it’s a bit like cheating’ but, hang on, with 70kg, the tyre degradation and everything else, winning was titanic, it was one of the hardest things to do. Our car was almost too old, the technology had moved on, so for me, that season was probably the one against all odds.

At Brands Hatch the year before, I had been leading in the rain but I locked up after the safety car and went off, so I was super determined to win this time. We prepared well for the track, set-up wise, and I finished seventh in the first race then, with the reverse grid, I managed to win the second. That was a very emotional moment.

There is a photo of me on the podium with the England flag in one hand, the Guernsey flag in the other, and the black armband for Colin. Seeing the photos still always reminds me of him. I have actually had a really nice leather bag made up with photos of that race weekend sewn inside it, and I use that in Historics now.

It meant a lot to have recognition from my peers. Michael Schumacher followed my races and Colin respected what I achieved. He was an absolute role model and it meant a lot to me. The sad thing was a few weeks earlier we met up and he suggested going for a night out, but I had to fly home. We planned to do it later that year, but sadly it never happened.

The win at Brands Hatch moved me to the top of the championship with two rounds of the season left and it ended up going right down to the final race in Macau. There were seven or eight drivers who could still have won and I had kept myself in it all year. I came eighth in the first race then won from pole in the second to take the title.

It was the pinnacle of my career, but I still remember having to fight hard for my contract the year after! That’s racing for you! I was very fortunate the BMW Motorsport carried me on, and I switched to become a factory German driver for the following year, which was another step up in my career. I spent 10 years with BMW and was able to maintain a really high level. I ended up being a test driver in Formula One, based on my approach to World Touring Cars, and that win and title was the trigger for it all. In the end, when you are at that level of performance you make it impossible for people not to keep you.

My son, Seb, is going through that same thing now. He is one of the top sports car racers of his generation and I am always saying ‘you are as good as your next race now, not your last race’. There is so much choice nowadays, and so many drivers, that you have got to make it impossible for people not to want you in their line-up.

When I look back on it, I am quite blown away by how popular WTCC was at that time. I would arrive at the garage and hundreds of people would be waiting for me. It made me feel quite emotional, really, because when you reach the top in professional Touring Cars or Sports Cars, you are world class but you are usually pretty much unrecognized.

That was probably the peak of my fame. It was the first time that I would jump in a black cab and they would recognise me. Autosport did a front cover that year – I have had four front covers, which was special – and with the recognition I had from the previous titles, it was just a wonderful feeling of pride.

Motorsport UK English Rally Championship, in association with SEACON UK

Following the Wyedean Forest Rally, the penultimate round of the Motorsport UK English Rally Championship, Ernie Graham is confirmed as the 2023 Champion. Co-driven by his wife Karen, they missed the opening event in the calendar, the Malcolm Wilson Rally, but then proceeded to take maximum scores on each of the next five rounds in their immaculate Mk1 Ford Escort RS1600. 11th overall in the Forest of Dean, just four seconds off a Top Ten finish, was enough for the Walton-on-Thames couple to take another English Championship class win, nudging Championship leader Elliot Payne off the top spot.

The Grizedale Stages, the final round of the Motorsport UK English Rally Championship in association with Seacon UK, suffered during the heavy snowfall that covered the Lake District over the first weekend of December and had to be abandoned with only three of the proposed seven stages complete. The results were declared at that point and second overall was sufficient to confirm Elliot Payne as the 2023 Championship runner-up, behind an absent Ernie Graham who had clinched the title on the previous round. Russ Thompson’s retirement allowed Robert Proudlock to take the final podium spot.

Final Championship Standings

1st  Ernie Graham  125 points
2nd  Elliot Payne    121 points
3rd  Robert Proudlock 116 points

Chris Ingram and Hannah McKillop slide the DAE-built TR7 V8 through the Cefn Stage on the 2023 Roger Albert Clark Rally. Although the event was dominated by the Ford Escort, there was a supporting cast of other classic rally machinery adding a different tone to the soundtrack of the forest stages. The car is an exact copy of the works car, as campaigned by Tony Pond in the 1978 RAC Rally.
